

Precautions & Guidance during the Covid-19 pandemic

Updated on 6th of January 2021

Buffalo Studio remains open for sessions during the duration of the new lockdown in line with advice from the government and the MPG.

► <https://mpg.org.uk/news/national-lockdown/>

We remain up to date with the latest advice and are implementing the following to ensure the safety of our clients and staff. We ask that anyone attending a session read this guidance carefully and adhere to it during your session.

- Travel to the studio - we are asking all clients and staff to avoid public transport wherever possible
- Please keep your group size to an absolute minimum. Anyone not actively involved in the session will not be admitted to the studio, we ask clients to stagger their attendance where possible to minimize the number of people in the studio at any one time. We will happily take time to discuss a session plan with you in advance in order to follow this principle.
- All staff will wear a face mask whenever we need to be in a room with a client, and we ask our clients to bring their own face mask and do the same.
- Hand sanitizer and alcohol wipes will be available in the studio to sterilize hands and equipment, and all necessary touchpoints in the studio will be sterilized before and after every session.
- There will be a minimum of 1 hour between sessions to allow for sterilizing procedures, and to accommodate for any delay that these precautions incur during session times.
- Anyone who displays symptoms of COVID-19 is asked not to attend the session and self-isolate. We have updated our cancellation policy to allow anyone with symptoms to postpone a session at any time without penalty, please be aware that we reserve the right to postpone sessions at any time.
Please note that we continue to offer discounted rates for remote sessions for mixing and mastering - and we would encourage anyone considering a mixing or mastering session to take this approach.